YOUNG people took centre stage as Well Street Market hosted a youth takeover day earlier this month.

The stars of the show were the young singers, rappers and performers who entertained a sizable crowd, but special applause was reserved for local heroes

Rudimental who helped mentor those stars-in-the-making who performed. The event was part of the Council-run Discover Young Hackney arts festival. There was a youthful twist to the market itself with young entrepreneurs setting up stalls to showcase products.

The monthly street market also had a surprise: it will now be happening weekly.

Hackney Today is published by the London Borough of Hackney. It has a print run of 108,000 copies and is delivered free to every home and business in the borough. The Council uses it to communicate public service information to residents. It is published fortnightly in order to carry statutory advertising, such as planning and traffic notices, which is cheaper for the taxpayer than using another local paper. The law does not allow for statutory notices to be published solely online or in a less frequent publication.

The paper's official, door-to-door delivery is 91,665 copies per issue, Audit Bureau of Circulations (ABC)

Hoxton Street community garden to be renamed in memory of artist Khadija

A COMMUNITY garden in Hoxton is being renamed after a promising young artist who died in the Grenfell Tower fire.

Khadija Saye, pictured right, lost her life alongside her mother, Mary Mendy, on 14 June. She was on the cusp of international recognition as an artist and her work was being exhibited at the Venice Biennale. She had previously worked as an intern at Peer – a Hoxton organisation that produces art for diverse audiences – and helped to create a new community garden on Hoxton Street. Following her death,

Peer and the local tenant management group have agreed to rename it in her memory. A Peer spokesperson said: "We are honoured to have had the opportunity to learn from the beauty of her spirit and the warmth of her heart."

There have been robust inspections of Hackney's estates and blocks following the Grenfell tragedy

Fire safety checks

FOLLOWING the fire at Grenfell Tower, independent experts have been inspecting Hackney's estates and housing blocks, continuing to provide reassurance to residents about the safety of their homes.

None of Hackney's buildings use the sort of cladding as Grenfell Tower, and the Council was not asked to submit samples for Government testing. However, the Council is undertaking a review looking at all aspects of fire safety.

Experts from Cladtech Associates are currently checking the cladding and other insulation on the Council's housing blocks.

A Council team is also checking fire safety equipment and speaking to residents about any fire safety issues.

“Fire safety is more than just cladding. We will continue to check every aspect of fire safety across our homes”

The Council will publish fire risk assessments of its housing over the coming weeks, and wrote to all estate residents earlier this month to update them about the fire safety review.

The work is being overseen by a Fire Safety Response Group, which includes the London Fire Brigade's (LFB) Hackney Borough Commander and senior Council staff.

The LFB has been visiting estates to look at fire engine access and remind people to park in a way which does not block access.

Cllr Clayeon McKenzie, Cabinet Member for Housing Services, said:

"Within 48 hours of the Grenfell Tower fire we completed initial inspections of our buildings with cladding.

"Fire safety is about more than just cladding though, and we will continue to check every aspect of fire safety across our homes.

"I'd also urge residents to do their bit by keeping blocks free of potential hazards and fire doors secure, and reporting any concerns they have."

Contract update

HACKNEY Council has written to social landlords across the country to inform them of issues relating to fire safety work carried out by former contractors Lakehouse PLC and Polyteck Business Services Ltd, and overseen by its former housing management company, Hackney Homes.

In 2011, Hackney Homes oversaw a programme of fire safety works across some of its properties. The work was carried out by Polyteck as a sub-contractor to Lakehouse. In 2014, Hackney Council's audit and anti-fraud team received allegations of fraud and overcharging relating to these works.

It discovered some works carried out during this period were defective. The Council ensured these works were redone to the correct standard, at the contractor's expense.

It notified the police, and there is an ongoing criminal investigation. Hackney Homes was dissolved in 2016, and housing management returned to the Council.

Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, said: "Fire safety is a top priority for the Council.

"Whilst we don't want to cause undue alarm, we want to give other councils the chance to check works carried out by these companies.

"It is right that councils and social landlords should work together, share information and support each other to prevent future tragedies."

HACKNEY marked a historic moment on 3 July when the rainbow flag was raised for the first time ever over Hackney Town Hall.

The flag is an internationally recognised symbol for the Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, Queer and Intersex plus (LGBTQI+) community.

It is being flown above the Art Deco listed building to mark the Pride in London festival this month.

During which, on 8 July, 150 people from Hackney were due to take part in the Pride in London parade – the borough's biggest ever contingent – to show support for LGBTQI+ equality and rights in Hackney and across the globe. Council staff, local businesses, charities, community and youth groups were set to walk alongside Hackney's float – a Council bin lorry – complete with rainbow

As well as flying the flag, the Council has also launched Hackney Pride 365, a community-led festival that celebrates the borough's historic, diverse and boundary-breaking LGBTQI+ community.

“It gives me immense pride to see the rainbow flag flying above the town hall, reaffirming the principle of acceptance without exception”

The flag was hoisted by Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville and the Speaker of Hackney, Cllr Soraya Adejare.

She said: “During the latter part of the 20th century, LGBTQI+ communities have moved from being invisible and subject to oppressive legislation to now thankfully having a recognised and clearly defined status.

“In solidarity with the ongoing struggle for LGBTQI+ equality across the world and in celebration of Hackney Pride 365, it gives me immense pride to see the rainbow flag flying above the town hall, reaffirming the principle of acceptance without exception.”

Your views on revamp of buildings

WORKspace, housing, a restaurant, performance and exhibition spaces are just some of the proposals being considered to breathe new life into Stoke Newington Town Hall and Library.

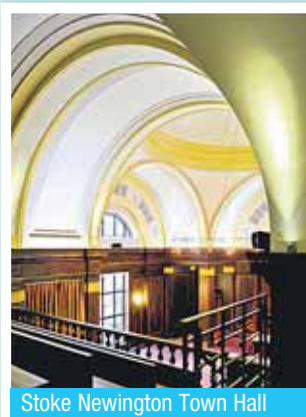

It is hoped these additions will make better use of these important, but under-used, Grade II listed public buildings and also raise money to contribute towards vital maintenance works.

Drop-in sessions to speak to the Council's planning team as part of a public consultation on the proposals, will be held at Stoke Newington Library, 12 July, 12noon-2pm; and 26 July, 2pm-4pm. The consultation closes on 14 August. The questionnaire is also available at Stoke Newington Library.

Smoking out illegal tobacco

A LONDON-WIDE campaign using super spaniels to help sniff out illegal tobacco arrives in Hackney this month. The roadshow will highlight the harm caused by the sale of illegal or cheap tobacco, which is unregulated, untaxed and easier for children to purchase. It is estimated that criminal networks make over £100million a year from the illegal tobacco trade in London alone.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Devolution, said: “Illegal tobacco makes it too cheap and easy for young people to start smoking.

“The roadshow provides a great opportunity to highlight the dangers of smoking, as well as the additional risk of illegal or counterfeit tobacco.”

The roadshow will take place from 11am on 14 July outside Tesco on Morning Lane. Anyone who suspects a premises is selling cheap, or illegal tobacco, should call the Citizens Advice Consumer Helpline on: 03454 04 05 06, or report them online at: www.londontradingstandards.org.uk/report-consumer-crime

Bike Around The Borough was not only a testament to Hackney's healthy credentials it was...

The annual Bike Around The Borough event had Hackney's schools take part in a nine-mile bike ride before stunt cyclists showed off their moves at a summer social on Hackney Downs

Photos: Adam Holt

CHILDREN on bicycles for as far as the eye could see was the spectacular result of the seventh annual Bike Around The Borough event.

Hundreds of young cyclists from 37 of the borough's schools completed a nine-mile circuit of Hackney.

The ride on 29 June was organised by the Council in partnership with the Met Police, and sponsored by Volker Highways and Berkeley Homes.

The borough is the world record holder for the most riders in a 'bike bus', an accolade secured in 2016 when 1,005 people took part in the event.

This year, the record was upheld as more than one-third of the borough's schools joined in.

The final count was an impressive

“Biking with this next generation of Hackney cyclists was inspirational and I know they will carry on our ambition to remain the best biking borough in the country”

979 riders in total.

Arron Kayembe, a Year 6 pupil from St Scholastica's Primary School, said: "Riding a bike is great because it not only makes you keep fit and healthy, but you can also enjoy it."

Pop-up motivation stations were positioned along the route, while spectators waved flags and cheered on the cyclists.

Mr Ekeama, lead mentor at Baden Powell Primary School, said: "The children loved it. It is a fantastic event for them, not only do they get to learn about cycling, but it's also great for community spirit."

The ride provided a chance for students to practice skills learned at cycle training and raise awareness of how easy it is to travel around the borough by bike.

It also saw school staff trained in cycle marshalling.

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, Transport and Parks, said: "As well as being a great day out and showing

Hackney holds the world record for most riders in a bike bus, with 1,005 cyclists joining in last year

how fun cycling can be for all residents, this event will help children get on their bikes more, help make the borough greener, and encourage a healthy lifestyle.”

Hackney aims to be the most cycle-friendly borough in London by 2025 with 15 per cent of residents travelling by bike for all journeys.

The borough has been recognised nationally for its innovative approaches to encouraging cycling with initiatives such as free training for children and adults; a cycle loan scheme; the introduction of a 20mph speed limit on all Council-controlled roads; the Cycle Hackney app; and cycle awareness training for HGV drivers.

Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, said: “Biking with this next generation of Hackney cyclists was inspirational and I know they will carry on our ambition to remain the best biking borough in the country.”

Following the ride, the Hackney Cycling Campaign hosted a summer bike social in Hackney Downs, with Stars n Stripes balance bike obstacle course, the Hackney Playbus, Champagne Lasseaux, Sustainable Hackney, and roller racing with Cycle Club Hackney.

“ This event will help children get on their bike more, help make the borough greener and encourage a healthy lifestyle ”

Future planning for Shoreditch

RESIDENTS and businesses can get involved in planning for the Shoreditch of the future by taking part in workshops later this month. The Council wants to protect and sustain Shoreditch's unique character alongside managing the pressures that its extraordinary growth brings. To do this an Area Action Plan – called Future Shoreditch – is being developed. It will describe a vision for the area in 2034. Have your say at the Opportunity Hub, 137-139 Bowling Green Walk, Pitfield Street, N1 6AL, on 19 July, and on 20 July, from 6pm to 8pm.

PEOPLE are being encouraged to apply to become market traders at the new public square on Narrow Way. The location by St. Augustine's Tower is set to start operating as a weekday market from 7 August. Download and complete an application form at: hackney.gov.uk/market-traders.

Alternatively, e-mail: marketsservice@hackney.gov.uk; or call the Markets Service on: 020 8356 5300.

Market traders can also participate in the Hackney One Carnival, which is set to return on 10 September. Apply by 16 July. For more info, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/carnival, or drop into the Parking, Markets and Street Trading Team at Units 2Bii, Kingsland Shopping Centre, in Dalston.

Tackling anti-social behaviour

THE Council is launching a consultation to find out what residents think about its approach to anti-social behaviour (ASB) in the borough. The Council's enforcement service is being restructured to create more enforcement officer posts.

The focus of the consultation is on ASB where there may be a link to support needs, such as substance misuse or mental health issues. Enforcement action is taken as a last resort. The results of the consultation will feed into Hackney's public space anti-social behaviour strategy. The consultation closes on 24 September. Residents can have their say at: consultation.hackney.gov.uk; or by calling: 020 8356 3170 to request a paper copy of the consultation.

Eid celebrations

OVER 650 people attended an Eid street party organised by the local Musallaa an-Noor mosque in Stoke Newington this month.

The event in Dynevor Road on 2 July, was designed to bring different communities together sharing fun, food and festivities to mark the end of Ramadhan.

Local people enjoyed traditional Asian and British food and drink, and joined in activities including henna tattoos, an Arabic calligraphy stand, arts and crafts, field games and a bouncy castle.

“It was a beautiful display of unity and solidarity in our community”

They were joined by Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville; Speaker of Hackney, Cllr Soraya Adejare; other councillors, and dignitaries from a number of faiths.

There were also mosque tours throughout the day to better understand the beliefs, practices and teachings of the local Muslim community.

Resident Alison Heard, said: “It was a wonderful way to meet some of the mosque volunteers and to see so many people from the local community and different faiths, and it was great to celebrate Eid on such a sunny day. Many thanks to the organisers for the generous hospitality: the food was delicious.”

Guests on the day included MP Diane Abbott, who said: “It was wonderful to see so many members of the community at the Eid street party. It was a beautiful display of unity and solidarity in our community.”

Youth takeover day put a spring in street market's step

A SPECIAL guest appearance from local heroes and Brit award-winners Rudimental was one of the highlights of youth take over day at Well Street Market.

The event on 1 July offered budding performers the chance to showcase their talents on the market's live music stage.

The event offered mentoring to all the young musicians as part of the Council's Discover Young Hackney arts festival.

Rudimental's Kesi, who was born and raised in the borough, said: "I've been very lucky to grow up amongst so many different cultures, and so many influences, and people from so many walks of life.

"We've been around the world touring, seen loads of different places, but there's not many places that have the same sort of spirit as Hackney, which I feel, gives you an advantage in life, having had these experiences growing up."

Some of the future superstars who took to the stage included the winner

“There's not many places that have the same sort of spirit as Hackney, which I feel gives you an advantage in life” of this year's Alter Ego talent contest, Chifa K, and other finalists.

Young people also took over some of the Well Street stalls, with a range of wares on offer at London's first ever Student Makers and Teenage Market.

Jasmine, 13, who helps run a Gascoyne youth club, set up a handmade cosmetics stall.

She said: "Doing the stall is really fun, it also gets you to think about how to start your own business and how to bring people towards your products."

Alivia, seven, was excited to spend her pocket money at the Student Makers Market. She said: "This is so exciting. When I grow up I'd like to make all these things and run my own shop."

Since the market re-launched in December, Well Street has built up quite a reputation, and from 1 July, has moved from a monthly to a weekly market.

Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, who launched the youth takeover day, said: "Hackney is the creative heart of London, and it's through community platforms and collaborations like the Well Street Market Discover Young Hackney takeover, that new creative talent can be nurtured so future artists, makers and entrepreneurs can secure Hackney's legacy for generations as the cultural heart of London."

Hackney is one of the most diverse places in the UK. In this regular feature, we profile the borough's great & good or just plain interesting

hackneypeople

By Harriet Worsley

WAS raised in New Zealand," says Lyall Hakaraia. Adding: "But with a population of four-and-a-half million in the whole country, I could count the number of people who were into the things I was on one hand. London represented opportunity."

Specifically, Hackney.

The designer of custom-made couture for the stars, and founder of legendary Hackney club VFD, has been living in the borough for 25 years.

He says: "In a squat for seven of them, then in a warehouse for six, and now here, for 10 years."

Here is the building on Stoke Newington Road where he first launched a small gay club in 2007.

Originally called Vogue Fabrics, he started the club

Nevertheless, he says: "I found myself wanting to do something more immediate. Fashion goes into a magazine, but you never see the readers enjoying it. With a club, you can see, immediately, whether people are having fun or not."

He had bought a building on Stoke Newington Road, a former Turkish dance studio and one time immigration office.

He explains: "At the time, I was partying quite hard, I'd always wake up to find another 10 or so people crashed out on the floor around me. So I thought: I'm good at this."

And so, a year later, he opened the basement as a club, 'a safe place for all sorts of waifs, strays and gays'.

VFD's creativity and inclusivity quickly attracted “Dalston is a destination, we get lots of students, but people can still walk right past us and not know we're here. That's part of the magic” because 'when it comes down to it, fashion doesn't change the world. At best, and if you want to, you can use it as a platform'.

Abandoning a fashion career most people would covet cannot have been an easy decision.

From 'sewing pieces of fabric into something fabulous from my squat, and then selling them at London's markets', Lyall built his business up from the ground, finally spending two decades at the very top, designing for everyone from Lady Gaga to Madonna via Beyonce.

more and more people, creating wild parties.

"I knew we were doing something important when someone said they were writing a novella and it opened and closed in VFD," laughs Lyall. Adding: "Then there are the amazing relationships that began in the club."

"Plus, the huge number of amazing nights that were incubated here before growing up and moving on: Naked Boys Reading, Meat... they all started here."

Soon, the club was hosting everything from

Lyall Hakaraia's club space VFD has become a beacon for the queer community in the capital live gigs to poetry readings, political meetings and screenings.

And, of course, wild disco nights. Back then, he continues: "Everyone was local, they walked to the club and walked home again. Now, everyone's moved to Margate or Walthamstow. And Dalston is a destination. We get lots of students. But people can still walk right past us and not know we're here. That's part of the magic."

Now known as VFD, the club is open five or six days a week, through Lyall aims to be open all week. It is also one of the few remaining queer community spaces left in the capital.

"The problem with London is that the rents are so high that community spaces are dying out," Lyall explains.

"Especially ones for queer people. I want this place to still be here for people in 10 years time, because people know they can come here and be safe," he says.

Without a big budget to promote the club, Lyall dedicates himself to raising its profile to keep it alive. He says: "It's all on me. I'm a community connector."

Then there are his other projects.

"Over the past two years, I've been collating all the stories, photos and works of art that have been made at the club."

"It's going to be a book, I'll be looking for a publisher in the summer," he explains.

He is also working on a film, documenting his friend Rhyannon Styles' transition.

"I have six years of footage. She had questions throughout her transition, which we got other trans people to answer on camera," Lyall says.

Oh and he also mentors young British designers at London School of Fashion and does an impressive amount of charity work.

He says: "It's really nice to be able to give back to charities doing valuable work. We did a World Aids Day benefit where the money all went to Aids orphans. Local artists donated work."

At various times VFD has also supported Open Doors sexual health clinic, Oxfam, and the Refugee Community Kitchen in Calais.

His latest project is working on the CREATE8 fashion show with the Council, as part of its new Hackney Pride 365 festival. It sounds like a crazy schedule, I suggest.

He laughs: "But to me, the personal is political. I can't stop. Besides, on Sunday, I sleep for 12 hours."

Hackney WickED DIY Open Studios

Various locations, 28-30 July

FIFTY years ago, 100,000 hippies descended on Haight-Ashbury, the artists' quarter of San Francisco, in what was to become known as the Summer of Love. Today, the world's most concentrated creative community is in Hackney Wick, and a forthcoming festival is to throw open its doors to mark the anniversary. Hackney WickED's DIY Open Studios event is now in its ninth year. Every 12 months, the area's labyrinth of artists' studios and creative spaces artists open to the public for one glorious single weekend, so that you can explore and be inspired by famous names, up and coming students and everyone in between. This year's Summer of Love theme will see these artists explore themes from protest and revolution to love and unity – every bit as pertinent today as they were in 1967.

Pupils from Springfield Community School visited Lee Valley Regional Park for a habitats discovery day

YOU can learn a lot from creepy crawlies, as 60 local six-year-olds discovered when they were treated to a trip away from the city.

The pupils from Springfield Community School were given free transportation to Waltham Abbey Gardens in Essex, thanks to the Lee Valley Regional Park community access fund.

The scheme helps schools and community groups access the park's nature and educational opportunities.

“It was a fantastic learning experience, especially coming from inner London. The children loved it”

Hanna Merriman, a teacher at Springfield Community School, said: “The children would not have been able to visit the park without the fund.

“It provided us with an amazing opportunity to study science in its natural landscape.”

During the visit, Key Stages 1 and 2 pupils took part in a habitats discovery day, studying minibeasts like beetles, millipedes and butterflies.

MORE INFO

The Community Access Fund is open to school and community groups from across London. For more information about Lee Valley Regional Park, its education programmes and the community access fund, visit: visitlee valley.org.uk/education

Hanna added: “It was a fantastic learning experience, especially coming from inner-London to these amazing gardens and meadows. “The children absolutely loved it.”

News in brief

Your views on SEND provision

HACKNEY Learning Trust is currently reviewing the local education provision for Hackney children and young people with special educational needs and disabilities (SEND).

As part of the review, the trust is conducting a survey of parents/carers of children and young people with SEND; young people aged 16 to 25 with SEND; and professionals and education providers who work with children and young people with SEND.

The views of service users and providers will help shape the way the trust can expand education provision for children and young people with SEND. The survey closes on 16 July. To take part, visit:

Brothers on Bikes provided free maintenance checks

Gearing up for bike activities

PUPILS and parents at the Olive School perfected their cycling skills as part of national Bike Week.

The primary school ran a series of cycling activities last month, designed to help pupils gain confidence on two wheels. Children brought their own bikes into school for free maintenance checks.

They also received expert tuition from Year 4 teacher Junaid Ibrahim, and Jahir Hussain, from community cycling club Brothers on Bikes.

The week culminated in a 10-mile guided bike ride for parents through Hackney and along the River Lea.

Mr Hussain said: “If parents feel confident on their bikes, they’re much more likely to encourage their children to ride and instil a love of cycling.”

Southwold pupils discover DNA roots

A PRIMARY school has formed the basis for a landmark study of London's diversity, revealing 26 different ethnic regions in the ancestry of 24 families.

A total of 34 parents of children at Southwold Primary School agreed to have their DNA tested by Ancestry, a consumer genomics company, and the results were revealed to them by their children.

The tests showed they had ancestors from Scandinavia, Ireland, Russia, Greece, North Africa and East Asia among others.

One parent, Eliseu Goncasves, discovered that his DNA comprised of 18 different ethnic regions. He said: “It was amazing to sit opposite my son as he kept counting, on and on, the number of places I come from.

“I had no idea I could be from so many. I really feel like a citizen of the world now.”

Brad Argent, DNA

expert from Ancestry, said: “This experiment has been fascinating.

“It has challenged the children and adults’ perceptions of their own ethnicities, reinforcing what a melting pot our capital is.”

A healthy eating programme from Shoreditch Trust

www.shoreditchtrust.org.uk

SHOREDITCH Trust's Food For Life Programme works with members of the local community to encourage affordable healthy eating, cooking skills and food knowledge.

This one tray dish is quick, affordable and easy for a mid-week dinner. The salad can be served warm, but keeps really well and can be eaten cold too, making it ideal for a leftovers lunch.

Roasted tomato and pepper chickpea salad

Serves 2 as a main or 4 as a side

Preparation time
20 mins

Cooking time
20 mins

Ingredients

- 1 red onion
- 250g cherry tomatoes
- 1 bell pepper
- 1 tin (400g net) of chickpeas
- 2 cloves of garlic
- ½ teaspoon cumin seeds
- ½ teaspoon chilli flakes (optional)
- 40g feta cheese
- 1 tablespoon of olive oil
- Pinch of black pepper.

- Wash the vegetables
- Chop the onion and bell pepper into bite-sized pieces and the cherry tomatoes in half
- In a baking tray add the onion, bell pepper, tomatoes, crushed garlic, cumin, chilli flakes, olive oil and black pepper. Mix together with your hands until everything is well covered
- Put in the oven for 20-25 minutes, stirring half way through and checking to see if they are roasted after 20 minutes
- Meanwhile, drain and rinse the chickpeas. Stir into the vegetables when they are cooked. Pop back in the oven for 3-5 minutes to heat through
- To serve, crumble the feta over the salad.

Cost: £2.20 (£1.10 per portion).

Serving suggestion: Enjoy with spinach or other green leaves stirred through.

Method

- Preheat the oven to 200C/180C fan/gas mark 6

The Mayor and councillors

Councillors are elected by residents and serve for four years. The last borough-wide elections took place in May 2014.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee Council services.

They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues of concern. Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – see map below.

MAYOR PHILIP GLANVILLE

Hackney's executive Mayor Philip Glanville, was directly elected by the borough in September 2016. He is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. The Mayor holds monthly casework surgeries in the Town Hall. To book an appointment, email: mayor@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 3269. Residents are first encouraged to contact their ward councillor. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of Hackney who is chosen annually from the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Rosemary Sales.

- The roles of Speaker and Deputy Speaker do not attract a SRA but provision of an allowance is covered by separate legislation
- All Members are only permitted to receive payment for one Special Responsibility Allowance at any one time.
- Unlike Councillors the Directly Elected Mayor role does not attract a basic or special responsibility allowance. Instead one overarching allowance is paid that takes account of all aspects of the full time role.

Column 1 shows the Member's name; Column 2 shows the basic allowance paid; Column 3 indicates the Special Responsibility Allowance (SRA) paid, which is payable for positions within the Council which hold extra responsibility; Column 4 shows the responsibilities for which Members were paid an allowance; Column 5 shows any travel and subsistence expenses that were paid during the year; Column 6 shows any Childcare/ Dependents' Carers' expenses that were paid during the year; and Column 7 shows the total gross payments made to Members in the Municipal Year May 2016 to May 2017 (or part thereof).

As part of Members' roles and responsibilities they attend formal committees as well as ward meetings and surgeries, and are also appointed to represent the Council on a number of outside bodies. Council appointments to outside bodies can be viewed on the Council's website: <http://mginternet.hackney.gov.uk/mgListOutsideBodies.aspx??bcr=1>

Schedule 2: Independent and Statutory Co-opted Members of the Council for Municipal Year 2016-2017

In the Municipal Year 2016-2017 the standard rate for attendance allowances payable to the Council's Independent and Statutory Co-opted Members was £112.00 per meeting. The attendance allowance was then multiplied by the number of meetings scheduled for the Municipal Year.

The following allowances were paid to the Council's Independent, Statutory and non- Statutory Co-opted members between May 2016 and May 2017 (or part thereof).

Name	Committee	Allowance for 2016-17
Rabbi Judah Baumgarten	Co-opted Member of Children and Young People Scrutiny Commission	£1094.76
